Your Destination

Greenwood, South Carolina. There's Always Something Blooming. Greenwood, South Carolina is home to world famous Park Seed Company and the South Carolina Festival of Flowers. Come any time of year to tour a Revolutionary War battlefield and shop amid the tree-lined streets in a community that is always planting something new for you to do.

Our Heritage

In 1823, John McGehee Jr. of the Cambridge area in Ninety Six, SC built a log house for his bride-to-be on his 600 acre plantation. It is said the new Mrs. McGehee named their summer home "Greenwood" and later gave the name to the small village that grew around the plantation. Chartered in 1857, Greenwood's city population today is 22,400; Greenwood county's population now exceeds 68,000 residents!

Greenwood History

Considering the number of people building homes in the Greenwood area today for the purpose of vacationing and future retirement, it comes as no surprise that the first residence here was built in 1823 by John McGehee, Jr. as a summer home for him and his bride.

This area today, called Green Wood Village, is located in the East Cambridge Avenue area. When the first railroad came through in 1852, it moved the center of the village to its present-day location since stores and businesses began to locate around the depot.

This marked the beginning of developing the "widest Main Street in the world" and the Square, now referred to as Uptown Greenwood.

The Greenwood community became known throughout the state as "preeminently an example of what can be accomplished by unremitting energy and boundless self-reliance" and Greenwood's "hospitable and progressive" people welcomed "all who may come to" their town.

These characteristics are still present in today's Greenwood residents.

Greenwood County Library

The New Greenwood County Library stands at 600 South Main Street, providing an anchor for the redevelopment of Greenwood's downtown. Completed in 2010, the library is now South Carolina's first certified "green" public library.

The library offers the community:

- Meeting rooms.
- Study rooms.
- Computers and Internet access.
- Collections for children, teens, and adults.
- Programs for children, teens, and adults.

Tabernacle, as a community, began to disappear in the mid to late 1820's when the people began to regard the location as unhealthy. They "pulled up roots" and moved to higher ground just a few miles north. A new community – first called Mt. Ariel and later Cokesbury – was developed.

This cultural and historical treasure is located about 2.5 miles north of Greenwood, just off Highway 254 (Cokesbury Road). An official SC historical marker stands at the entrance. Visitors follow an old (the original) dirt road for about 100 yards before reaching the main entry gate.

Cokesbury College
 SC Hwy 246, Cokesbury
 864-374-3237

Built in 1854, the college operated until 1876 as the Masonic Female Collegiate Institute, and from 1876 to 1911 as the Cokesbury Conference School. This group of antebellum structures is named to the National Register of Historic Places.

Festivals

SC Festival of Flowers

Celebrate a summer family tradition in Greenwood with the South Carolina Festival of Flowers held annually in June. Budding from Park Seed Company's Flower Day, the festival has become a month-long extravaganza filled with a variety of events for the whole family. With its "Perennial Favorite" theme, the Festival has been attracting thousands of visitors for over 40 years, offering more than 35 unique events including musical performances from boisterous bluegrass, soulful jazz and traditional beach music to craft, art and photography displays. Enjoy our Southern hospitality as you stroll through the Square in Uptown Greenwood and view our newest signature attraction - a Safari-themed topiary display of live flowers. Children of all ages will especially enjoy the 14-foot giraffe, life-sized elephant, t-rex and gorilla, just to name a few creatures from the animal kingdom.

The South Carolina Festival of Discovery encourages Greenwood County residents and visitors to "discover" a weekend of food, fun, and music, and experience and learn about the heritage, history, traditions, folklore, arts and crafts, music and dance, and vernacular culture of Greenwood and South Carolina. The Festival focuses on the rich tradition of Carolina Barbeque and Hash by sponsoring a Kansas City Barbeque Society (KCBS) sanctioned cook-off. Enjoy the weekend rubbin' elbows with the BEST barbeque cookers from across the country while you listen to the rich sounds of the blues! Held the second weekend in July, the festival features fun for the entire family including a Barbeque & Hash Cook-off and celebrates the unique musical sound of the Blues by sponsoring numerous musical artists at Uptown Greenwood restaurants and venues.

Ware Shoals

The Town of Ware Shoals, which straddles the Counties of Greenwood, Abbeville and Laurens, was little more than a picnic site on the Saluda River in the late 1800s. As America began developing hydroelectric plants to produce electricity, the Saluda River and its shoals would become an attractive site for industrialists of the day.

Founded in 1902 by Benjamin D. Reigel, Ware Shoals became a bustling textile community with Reigel Textile Corp. employing as many as 5000 workers. In 1931 the federal New Deal Program helped create Reigel Stadium. Throughout the decades the stadium has hosted many historic events including both the textile and Negro baseball leagues. Today Ware Shoals is best known for its annual Catfish Festival (<http://www.catfishfestival.com/>). The event began in 1981 to harvest more than a ton of catfish from the shallows during the annual draining of the Riegel Textile Company pool and dam site. In addition to the "festival", over 20,000 visitors enjoy rides, concerts, and vendors for this 2 day event.

Ninety Six, SC

From the siege at Star Fort to the production of military fabric at the Ninety Six Cotton Mill, the town of Ninety Six has a rich history and success in preserving their small-town charm throughout the years.

Ninety Six offers numerous seasonal events for visitors to enjoy. Ninety Six National Historic Site
SC Hwy 248, Ninety Six
864-543-4068

www.nps.gov/nisi

The Ninety Six National Historic Site is an area of unique historical and archeological significance. The unusual name was given by Charleston traders in the early 1700's because they thought it was the estimated remaining number of miles from here to the Cherokee village of Keowee in the upper South Carolina foothills.

By the mid-1700's, European colonists found it a favorable place to settle. During Ninety Six's early days, troubles with local Indians increased. In 1760, Cherokees twice attacked Fort Ninety Six, built for the settlers' protection. Located at the crossroads of twelve roads and paths, Ninety Six village reached its peak in the 1770's. This important back country town boasted a growing population, 12 houses, taverns and shops. At the newly constructed courthouse and jail, court cases were heard twice each year in April and November. Ninety Six proved to be a strategic location in the Revolutionary War. The first land battle south of New England was fought here in 1775. Later in the war,

Ninety Six figured prominently in the Southern Campaign of the American Revolution. In 1780, the British fortified the strategically important frontier town. From May 22 - June 18, 1781 Major General Nathaniel Greene with 1,000 patriot troops staged the longest field siege of the Revolutionary War against the 550 loyalists who were defending Ninety Six. The British-built Star Fort remains as one of the most well-preserved examples of an original 18th century earthen fort.

The park is located on South Carolina highway 248 two miles south of the town of Ninety Six. A visitor center features a museum with dozens of artifacts and exhibits. A 10-minute orientation film is available upon request. Books and souvenirs may be purchased at the gift shop. A one-mile paved walking trail allows visitors to explore historic roadbeds, reconstructed siege works, the original Star Fort, the reconstructed Stockade Fort and much more. There are several primitive trails to explore. The site covers 1,022 acres. Because of its importance to the founding of our nation Ninety Six National Historic Site became part of the National Park Service in 1976.

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays Historic Site
N Hospital St, Gleamns, Greenwood
864-223-8434

www.mayshousemuseum.org

Tour the birthplace of Benjamin Mays, one of the nation's most influential Civil Rights leaders, experience how African-American sharecroppers lived and understand the monumental rise of Dr. Mays from a sharecropper's son to president of Morehouse College.

Tabernacle Cemetery
Hwy 254, Greenwood

Now on the National Register of Historic Places, Tabernacle was, in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, a well populated and thriving community. It consisted, in addition to dwellings, of a church (Tabernacle Methodist) and a school (Tabernacle Academy). There is even mention in some historical records of the existence of a library. The cemetery is the only physical evidence that remains.

Among the 132 marked graves, visitors will find many other Greenwood and South Carolina family names. A unique feature of the cemetery are the graves of two Confederate general officers in the same plot.
